01. "Psychology is noticeable, for its objective to study the individual person's behaviour." Review the especiality of Psychology comparing it with three other subjects with the goal of studying human behaviour.

02. Elaborate the contribution of Philosophy and Medicine to the development of modern Psychology, during the 16th to 19th centuries.

03. What are the main socio-psychological factors that motivated the researchers to study Developmental Psychology in the recent past?

04. "For Gestalt Psychology perception is a wholistic process." Discuss with examples.
05. Describe human nature, according to Freudian Psychology.

06. How does the organism learn behaviours? Answer from a Behavioural point of view.

07. Analysing the nature of ‘self-concept’ clarify how it is developed from the point of view of Humanistic Psychology.

08. Why is the principle of ‘social motives’ more effective than the principle of ‘physical drives’ in explaining human motivation?

09. Examine the differences between the traditional concept of Intelligence and the modern concept of Multiple Intelligence.

10. Why do modern Psychologists consider ‘management of emotions’ as a type of Intelligence.

******************************************************************************