Cashew Nut Production Ltd.

Ajith Fernando, chief executive officer (CEO) of Cashew Nut Production Ltd (CNPL) addressing the third meeting held after his appointment to the post, with the managers at the top level of the management of the company and a management consultant attending the meeting on invitation, emphasized following points reviewing the activities of his company.

a) Before his taking over the position of CEO, there were two separate positions established namely CEO and Chairman. The post of chairman is still vacant. Ajith was of the view that any company, no matter what its size or industry, operates best with managerial clarity, when people know which way the company is going and who is leading the charge.

b) He had come to know that prior to his appointment two posts of CEO and Chairman were in operation

Chairman who was functioning as another boss had been reaching out to some employees with his own agenda for developing company resources.

He was of the view that it meant CNPL was being run by two leaders.

c) He had a plan to develop cashew nut vendors and to design foldable tables and benches for the women who were pavement hawkers selling cashew nuts. He was reluctant to ask the financial department to handle this activity even though sales and marketing functions were placed under the control of that Department.

d) Having noted the importance of maintaining supplier relations CEO stated that stores department handling the function of supplies was not capable of maintaining supplier relations effectively.

e) He also noted that the Human Resource Development manager was coordinating the activities of the company and reviewing its progress at present, spending 35% of his time.
